What were the Fund's costs for the last year? (Based on a hypothetical $10,000 investment)

Class Name	Cost of a $10,000 Investment	Cost Paid as a % of a $10,000 Investment
Institutional Shares	$96.73	0.90%

How did the Fund perform over the last year?

For the fiscal year ended May 31, 2024, the Amana Developing World Fund Institutional Shares returned 14.95%, ahead of the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, which returned 12.39%. For the five-year period ended May 31, 2024, the Institutional Shares reported an annualized return of 8.31%, the Index reported 3.54%, and the Fund's Morningstar peer group reported 4.45%. Morningstar rated the Institutional Shares 4 Stars for overall performance.

From the end of fiscal 2023 through the end of fiscal 2024, the Amana Developing World Fund's total net assets increased 49.7%. The Institutional Shares reported a turnover ratio of 1.3%, consistent with our overall strategy of investing in companies with long-term growth potential.

Factors Affecting Past Performance

Viewed alone, fiscal 2024 was a strong year for emerging markets. When compared to the US's immense returns, driven by the rise in artificial intelligence (AI), emerging market returns look humbler. Developing economies experienced growth that propelled equities higher, despite a strong US dollar. While economic growth was strong, equity returns were quite divergent. For the one-year period ended March 31, 2024, India's gross domestic product (GDP) grew 8.2% and the MSCI India Index returned 37.35%. Meanwhile, China's GDP grew 5.4% but the MSCI China Index declined -16.98%. This divergence between economic gains and equity growth has been a consistent theme in emerging market investing; economic gains don't necessarily accrue to shareholders. This, among others, is a key reason why we consider governance at both the company and geographic level. The above-mentioned disparity, and the fact that China constitutes 27.16% of the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, provides a compelling argument for active investing in emerging markets. Southeast Asia and Latin America benefited from supply chain diversification, Taiwan and South Korea are manufacturing leading-edge semiconductors, and India and Indonesia are adding masses to the middle class. With the MSCI Emerging Markets Index trading at 12.02x forward P/E versus 20.86x for the MSCI USA Index, we continue to see attractive value in developing world markets.

How did the Fund perform over the past 10 years?

The Cumulative Performance chart reflects a hypothetical $10,000 investment in the class of shares noted. Past performance does not guarantee future results. The graph and table do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or redemption of Fund shares.
