⁴ Expense ratio shown is as stated in the Fund's most recent Prospectus, dated September 27, 2024.

A Fund's 30-Day Yield, sometimes referred to as "standardized yield" or "SEC yield," is calculated by dividing the net investment income per share during the preceding 30 days by the net asset value per share on the last day of the period. The 30-Day Yield provides an estimate of a Fund's investment income rate but may not equal the actual income distribution rate. Saturna Capital, the Amana Income Fund's investment adviser, does not subsidize the Fund's expenses.

Performance data quoted herein represents past performance, which is no guarantee of future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be higher or lower than the performance data quoted herein. Performance

Risks: The Amana Income Fund limits the securities it purchases to those consistent with Islamic and sustainable principles. This limits opportunities and may affect performance. Fund share prices, yields, and total returns will change with market fluctuations as well as the fortunes of the countries, industries, and companies in which it invests. Foreign investing involves risks not normally associated with investing solely in US securities. These include fluctuations in currency exchange rates, less public information about securities, less governmental market supervision, and the lack of uniform financial, social, and political standards. Foreign investing heightens the risk of confiscatory taxation, seizure or nationalization of assets, establishment of currency controls, or adverse political or social developments that affect investments.

The S&P 500 is an index comprised of 500 widely held common stocks considered to be representative of the US stock market in general. Investors cannot invest directly in the Index.
